

CALL FOR PAPERS
An International Conference on “Interactions and Interchanges: Literature, Culture, Globalization” at
Kinnaird College for Women
In Collaboration with Arizona State University
December 6-8, 2018

Deadline for Abstracts: October 20, 2018

Kinnaird College for Women in collaboration with Arizona State University is holding An International Conference titled “Interactions and Interchanges: Literature, Culture, Globalization” from December 6-8, 2018.

In culmination of a multi-year partnership between Kinnaird College for Women and Arizona State University that explored many of these themes in relation to Pakistani and American literatures, we invite papers that engage the world of possibilities found in literature and other forms of cultural production to provide insight into what it means to be human in a globalized world.

Who to Attend

Researchers and academicians from a range of disciplines in the humanities, from national and international universities, are invited to share abstracts. Participants will present their papers in panels held over the three days of the conference. We especially invite scholars at the early stage of their careers to present their work, exchange new ideas, build professional networks, participate in topical workshops, and to find partners for future collaboration.

Conference Themes

Literature from a wide variety of genres and theoretical approaches are welcome. Papers may also examine related forms such as media representations, music, historical art, and performative arts. Key themes include, but are not limited to:

- gender and body
- belonging and dislocation
- migrant populations, nations, and borders
- colonialism and imperialism
- experiences of war and peace
- trauma and resilience
- illness and healing
- urbanization and the environment
- memory, history and identity
- experiences of colonialism and post colonialism
- labor and work
- other related disciplines
